Hongkong, October 2nd, 1895. FEEBLE as the Chinese Imperial Government are in an administrative sense, and weak as their military system has been proved to be by its ignominious collapse when opposed to the Japanese army, their resources are undoubtedly considerably in advance of those possessed by the Emperor HIEN Fung when the Taiping Rebellion desolated the central provinces of the Em. pire. At that time most of the Chinese "braves" were armed with long spears, bows and arrows, and the clumsy gingal, Of discipline there was absolutely none, and any rabble rout, so long as they possessed similar weapons, were almost as effective in a fight as the best of the Imperial troops. Indeed the victory in most cases rested mainly with the leader, even if nominally unversed in the art of war, whose tactics were the best. Sometimes it remained with the defending force, if they were well entrenched behind walls and possessed a good supply of food. The Taipings never attained to any thing better than an undisciplined horde poorly armed, rudely led, and for the most part ill supplied. Yet they for some years not only carried all before them, laying waste the country like locusts, but defeating the Imperial troops even where the latter had more advantageous positions. It was only when the "Ever Victorious" Army was organised first under WARD and then under Gordon that the tide was turned. and the insurgents were checked in their onward career of destruction and despoilment of the land. Since that time, however, the Imperial Government have at least learned and Rue Toursnne. Sixteen houses were one lesson. They know how to arm their destroyed. The Imperial Government also enjoy the position of hold ing all the ports, and are thus able to prevent supplies of arms or ammunition to rebels. It is to these facilities they owe the case with which they have been able to suppress all the various risings that have taken | Chinese are buying up property on the Carter | with sales, and Straits have been negotiated at | pened that in the obscure early growth of the | her Majesty's Government, but we are approachplace in different portions of the Empire during the last quarter of a century. It is these conditions that render an insurrection in the Central Kingdom so doubtful and difficult an enterprise no matter how numerous the rebel following. But while the chances of a successful revolution in China are very small, they are not altogether hopeless, always provided that the leader is a man possessing some practical knowledge of the science of war and of the resources of the district in which it is conducted. As a matter of fact there are no soldiers in China in our sense of the castle found the place in flames. with disaffection. At the same time it must he admitted that in the Mahomedan rebeldion just developed in Kansuh there are elements which may well cause the gravest disquiet at Peking. It has originated among regular troops, and they have unfurled the standard of revolt in the name of the Prophet. It is a war between Mussulmen and Buddhists. The rebels are well armed and have a vast reserve of men behind them. The latest intelligence from Kansuh is to the effect that on the 18th ult. a hotly contested battle was fought at a place about forty-eight miles to the south-east of Lanchow, the provincial capital, and that during the fight three battalions of cavalry and seven of infanty, numbering over 4,000 men, suddenly went over to the enemy, naturally causing great confusion and nearly involving defeat to General Tung Fu-HSIANG, the the case would be dismissed. His Worship tinued neglected, offers to sell at $15 failing to added that the Sikhs were not justified in bring out buyers. China Borney after a long Imperialist commander. The day was saved, according to the Imperialist account, by the criminals, and if the boy had proved his case A. S. Watsons have been going strong personal valour of General Tung and two brigade officers, and the rebels dislodged from some walled villages wherein they had been entrenched for some days, but the Imperialist loss was 2,360 in killed and wounded. The losses of the rebels are not known, but it is stated that 1,900 heads were brought in by the troops, a fact that stamps the Emperor's soldiers as the savages they really are. This would seem, too, to be one of those victories which confessedly are scarcely less disastrous than a defeat, for it is admitted by the Imperialists that the position is critical, applications for aid coming in frequently both from Kansuh and Shensi. The Imperialist army in Kansuh only numbers 60,000 men, and the Mahome dan rebels are estimated at 800,000 lighting men. The prefectural city of Sining, in Western Kansuh, is invested by a rebel body and cannot hold out long unless assisted, and it is feared that the rebellion will soon spread to Yunnan, where the Mahomedans will be only too ready to join their coreligionists if there seems any prospect of the movement succeeding. There are also large numbers of Mahomedans in Szechuen, who may be counted upon to give trouble if the rebellion extends. The Chinese Government can. however, readily grapple with this rebellion take prompt measures and the leaders establishing communication with the coast. Seeing, however, the miserable manner in which they failed to stop the Japanese advance through Manchuria, it is quite possible they may prove too late in driving back the Mahomedans in Kansuh. The progress of this great insurrection will be watched with no little

It might will be thought that, after the succession of disasters in the recent war, and in presence of this new trouble in the northwest, the Peking Government would be very ready to accord satisfaction to a friendly Power like Great Britain for the grievous injuries lately sustained. But the attitude of China can never be gauged; she is unlike all civilised states, and always calculates upon getting out of difficulties by the exercise of chicancry rather than by the arts of conciliation: Sympathy and forbearance are alike thrown away upon her, and she has no respect for acts that among Western nations would excite admiration gratitude. It is to be hoped, therefore, that Lord Salisbury will not be influenced by the hills and the very rapid flushing of the the progress of a pascent revolution in the north-west provinces to moderate his very great difference in the rainfall recorded in demands upon Peking, but rather to regard it as a fortuitous circumstance which may assist indirectly to bring about a settlement of the questions at issue between Great Britain and China. All past experience afforded by our relations with this great corrupt and effete body go to show that no gratitude need be expected from the officials at Peking, no matter how great the service rendered, nor how considerable the prize

THE RECENT RAINS AND THE WATER SUPPLY.

Yesterday, in accordance with the notice ssued by Hon. F. A. Cooper, Water Authority the water supply of the colony was limited to few hours, and it is an absolute certainty that residents will have to suffer this curtailment until the beginning of the rainy season next year, unless we are in the meantime visited prolonged tropical rains, and it is new almost seless to hope for such raigs. On Monday morning Tytam reservoir contained 205.000.000 gallons, whereas the capacity before the dam was raised was 312,000,000 gallons Pokfulam reservoir contained 37,000,000, and its holding capacity is 66,230,000 gallons. It will be seen from these figures that the outlook for the dry season is anything but cheerful, and everresident is in duty bound to see that not a drop of water is wasted or misused. With the exercise of ordinary care on the part of the consumers there will be sufficient water to allow o eight gallons per head per day until April, but of course if the water is improperly used even that allowance will have to be motorially reduced. The recent rains have not made very much difference to the condition of the reservoirs as yet. The rain was not very heavy at any time, and a large quantity will be lost by absorption and evaporation, while it will take a long time for much of the water to percolate through the earth and find its way to the streams feeding the reservoirs. Naturally the heavier the rain the less the quantity of water that soddens the earth. If the rain falls gently, as it did last week, there is more time for absorption, whereas a real tropical storm means the head long rushing of the water off streams, which soon become roaring torrents of water. It is curious to notice the various parts of the colony, and we therefore give the following interesting table showing the rainfall since September 27th :—

THE FOOCHOW MISSIONARIES AND THE ENGLISH AND AMERICAN CONSULS.

The following address signed by over fifty British missionaries representing six missionar societies has been sent to Colonel Hixson at Kucheng :---

"To the Hon. Col. Hixton.

We carnestly pray that the efforts put forth may result in such a settling of these troubles as may enable us to go on with our Master's work in quietness." Commerting on the above the Foochow Eclu

The above letter may be read in two ways One, as a spontaneous expression of gratitude towards the Hon. Colonel Hixson for his prompt action in getting a launch to meet and bring down the wounded from Whasang, to which he is most justly entitled, the other as throwing interests concerned is worthy of further exanother stone at Mr. Mansfield.

"We realiso," it is written in this letter that had it not been for the despatch with which you obtained a launch, the injury to the wounded incurred by the delay would probably have been far more serious that it was." The missionary who drafted this letter evidently did not know that the British Consul has been equally energetic. The was ably represented by Ar. Pitzipios, who wrote into the Vicercy for a aunch of light draught after ascertaining that he foreign lamnches he had tried to procure drew too much water to get to Sucykow having in the meantime been to the Custom House to obtain a permit for any launch he could get for the purpose of conveying Archdesco Wolfe and Mr. Banister to meet the wounded and survivors. After these efforts he heard that the V.S. Compai had obtained the only support that the Vicerov could then place their disposal and he went at once to the U.

Consulate to arrange for all to go together, and thanks to Mr. Hixson, it was so arranged It appears that Mr. Hisson obtained the pr mise of this launch first by going into the cit and this was a most fortunate thing for him maxmuch as he has received unbounded praise in the papers, calminating in the letter signed by apwards of fifty British missionaries, which we print above. Mr. Hirson may be just! proud of the kudos given him. At the same ime there was no want of energy shown at the British Consulate to produce this launch. we may be quite sure that Mr. Mansfield Mr. Pitzipios did not stay to consider whether the launch was placed at the American Consult or the British Consul's disposal so long us it went And so it is shown that the drafter of this letter was not strictly correct in stating that but for Mr. Hixson's action "the injury to the wounded incurred by the delay would probably have been Hixson secured this launch. Mr. Pitzipies would The U.S. Marshal might or might not have gone in it, but the Archdescon and Mr. Banis ter most certainly would have proceeded in it just the same. The letter goes on to say, "Your kind and most practical sympathy is another proof of how closely the two great branches of the English race are united in heart." Yes. Mr. Hixson knows and all the subscribers to this letter will now know that had the positions been reverse the result would have been precisely the same. American Consuls like British Consuls require day or two's holiday from time to time and it so happens, as it may happen some day in time of trouble, that the American Consul away from his post, the British Consul will prove himself no less personally energetic in the eyes of the fifty signatories of this letter than Mr. Hirson has been, in the interests of oth nations.

The Settlements have been rapidly growing in population beyond the means of ordinary accommodation; they have overflowed into adjacout districts, as at Sinza; where means of communi cation were to be found. But the greater part of the recently extended Settlement of Hongkey has been inaccessible for want of roads, and the English Settlement is problemly filled up. The matured result of an earth famine has supervened, and lots, which a few months | could hardly find buyers, have been sold resold at continually increasing rates. To give B few instances, a large lot of some 200 mow (33 acres) was offered some five months ago at Tis: 40,000 without Anding a buyer; it has within the last six weeks changed ownership at Tls. 80,000. Property in the Louza district, purchased a year ago at Tls. 450 per mow, has recently been resold at Tls. 1,500. These are not isolated instances. They all point in one direction. First, as to the urgent necessity of opening up by new roads the already acquired Settlements; and second, the necessity, if Shanghai is to continue a well governed and administered city, of increasing the area of the districts under Municipal control. The districts into which beg to express our heartfelt thanks to you for the recent growth has precipitated a growing population owe that result to -being rendered-accessible by roads made by the Municipality outside the limits. They were equired, for the purposes of access to the districts around, to provide some means of healthy exercise. They are rapidly losing their character, and need to be extended. They have, however, afforded the means of building native suburbs. But off the main roads those suburbs are rapidly becoming nests of filth and disorder. Recently the right of the German Government to claim concessions has been reocgnised, and negotiations have been going on but there are still dangers ahead for want concerted action. In Shanghai, the denational sation of English and American concessions has worked with the best results. It is to be hoped this denationalisation will still be continued. An experiment which has now after fifty years of trial proved a success for all

THE POWER OF PEKING This plea of the inability of Peking to control the provinces is pure humbug and bluff We have noted the elaborate and ingenious discussions to which so many of cur contemperaries have treated us on the subject, all to the effect that Peking is unable to control the prerinces. We have smiled and been silent. All this theorizing about the want of centralization otc., is very line, but the theory of metropolitan weakness is in glaring contradiction to the most obvious facts. We are thoroughly convinced that Peking cannot control the provincial authorities when she does not want to. while scores of recent instances may be adduced to show how effectively Peking can have her will obeyed when in earnest. instance can be adduced where admittedly earnest desire has been aside. Chinese officials are treacherous. bulent, malicious enough; but they have superstitions regard for the authority the Emperor. Who gave the order (which was promptly obeyed) to stop the Szechnen riots! Peking. Who ordered Liu Ping chang to the capital? Peking. Who stopped him half-way and sent-him back f Peking. Who decreed that be should pay out of his own nocked the Tls. 960,000 indomnity to the French Missions in Szechuen? Peking. But Peking. must be remembered, is as conservative and anti-foreign as any city in the Empire, and that cause of the spirit shown by the members of the Cabinet and the heads of Boards. Even amongst the better sort of manduring who would I nothing. not actually connive at murder and incendiarism. do the foreigner or the missionary justice. is because they count upon the connivance or judicious inactivity of Poking that local officials are arrogant and obstreperous. We have an illustration of the same thing in the case of the Formosan insurredtion. Chang Chih-tung's conduct in backing the rebels was flagrantly treasonable. this not an instance of insubordination P Ostensibly, yes; but not really, for, as is well known he was encouraged to it by members of the Tsungli Yamen. If we are to recur to the gunboat policy let it be on the right ground not that Peking is unable but that she is on willing to give adequate protection to foreigners. -Peking and Tientein Times.

THE FRANCO-CHINESE TREATY.

In the House of Lords on the 30th August Lord Laminaton said he wished to ask a question with reference to the boundaries formed by the new Franco-Chinese Treaty, whother they affected the territory of Kiang Kheng or the territory of Kinng Hung, which England agreed to yield to China a year or two ago on the stipulation that if we waived our suzerainty China should not head it over to any other European power. The French papers said that we had no rights over the state Kiang Kheng. That was opposed to historical accuracy, as the French travellers Garnier and Carné bore witness 10 or 15 years and that this state was a tributery of Burmah at that time, and when we acquired Upper Burmah we also acquired suzerainty over this state. This matter was of very great importance, in view of a possible future trade route through Burmah to Southern China. He boped that he might receive a satisfactory assurance that this state was not included in, or likely to become part of French territory as a state lying on the easternor left bank of the Mekong.

The Marquis of Salisbury.—It would be very dangerous to give any pledge with respect to future policy affecting a country of which we know so little as Kisng Kheng. Kinng Kheng was tributary to Burmah, and as such belongs to the British Crown. But there is a certain amount of controversy concerning it with the French-Government: as there is with respect to sundry other localities in that country.

But what the precise value of Kiang Kheng whether it is as important as my noble riend says it is whether it is the site of a future railway or not, are questions on which: we should be sorry to pledge ourselves. Negotiaboth Governments. Both in China, and I think to some extent in Franco, there has been a ing the discussion of all these questions in the friendliest spirit, and I have no doubt we shall

ABANDONMENT OF PROPOSED TAXATION OF FOREIGN OPIUM

It will be satisfactory to our readers to learn that, owing to the exertions and representations to Peking of the British Acting Consul-General at Shanghai, the iden of imposing what was practically a differential levy through the wholesale merchants on imported opium has been definitely abandoned. Sir Nicholas O'Conor. on the case being presented to him, at once took up the question and informed the Tsungli Yamen that in case any such levy, were made he would hold the provincial officials responsible. ceal authorities do not, however, propose to give up all right to the taxation of opium shops and have a scheme on foot, the details of which they propose to submit. Dear Sir.—In your last issue "The Man in the Road" in his sparkling "Notes" uses the vord "alright;" and, as a foreigner of many years residence in the East, where English is so ommon a means of telegraphic communication. am interested in knowing if the word be an allowable one. Everyone, who has to telegraph home at $2.50 per word will agree with me that

Some years ago, while travelling from Europe to China, I had a little experience which would rather give it against "The Man in the Read." It happened at a busy telegraph office in a British colony. I wished to cable I had safely arrived so far: and, on entering the office was exercising my mind in search of a phrase suitable for my, purpose, when I recollected that I had been told by an American scholar that now "all right" can be written in either one or two words, but that when written in one word one "1" had to be dropped. So, with a view to thrift as well as fitness. I holdly wrote "alright" down. But what was my surprise on receiving the bill to find that I was charged for two words I was of course helpless against the declaration of the suave but smiling official, and said

"Now what is a poor foreigner to do in such a case? We know that when doctors disagree there is no help for us, but surely there ought -to be someone among your readers to decide betwee the utilitarian American and the conservative English official "If 'The Man in the Road be good enough to give us his authority and make British telegraph officials decide in favour of 'alright' I shall feel that I have not spent my $2.50 in vain.—I am, dear sir, yours truly, Considering the commonness of the practice seems hard that a man should be fined $2.50 or mis-spelling a word, though if the rule were naiversal it would be an excellent way of paying off the national debt at short notice. "alright" is not right; because while "right" is "right" "all" is not right. Whereas in "all right," not only is "right" right, bu "all" is right loo, and therefore "all right ie all eight.—Ed.]

THE AMERICA CUP

ITS ORIGIN AND ITS HISTORY. Though by no means the most valuable of international trophies—the Royal Victoria Gold Challenge Cup, the most valuable in the United Kingdom, is intrinsically far superior-by general consent the America Cup has come to be regarded as the emblem of the yachting supre macy of the seas. Its origin dates back to the Great Exhibition year of 1851, when the Royal Yacht "Squadren" offered a cup worth £100 for competition by yachts of all nations. The yachts then affeat were modelled after the brigg, office in future. No one Chinese or foreign, schooners, or cutters of the Royal Navy, and both in England and America the prevailing shape of the hull was the "cod's head and mackerel tail. been not only the most corrupt in the the bows being short and full and the lines Empire, but who has for the last three years aft long and flat. Although repeated efforts have been made of late years to recover the Cun, it was not till rly twenty years had claysed that an English yachtsman could be found confident enough to s il his vessel across the Atlantic with the hope of restoring the Cup to its home on an English sideboard. In the meantime the trophy had been handed over to the New York Yacht Club to be held in trust as "a perpetual challenge for friendly rivalry between foreign countries," one of the conditions of the deed of gift being that each foreign competitor should sail on her own bottom to where the matches were to be con-

It was Mr. James Lloyd Ashbury, a Lon cashire railway-carriage constructor and some time Member of Parliament for Brighton, and owner of the schooner Cambria, who stepped into the breach; but it was not till preparations were commenced for the contest that he fully comprehended the magnitude of the difficulties of the undertaking. The Americans had impost such conditions that it would have been almost impossible for the Cambria or any other vacht to win the Cup. Instead of having to compete a ming ta single vessel, as he contended was the me ning of the word "match" in the deed of gift-or in other words, a duel between two vessels only—the New York Club decided by a vote of eighteen to one that, inasmuch as the America was obliged to sail against the whole fleet in order to win the Cup, so all subsequent competitors for it must do the same. In years, however, that condition has been altered, and the justice of Mr. Ashbury's contention so far admitted that the New York Club declare the name of their defending yacht seven days before the date of the race, selecting their defender by a series of triel races. The race took place on August 8th. 1870. The Cambria started against twenty-four vachts, all of which were schooners, but only fiffeon finished. The little Magic, a typical American centre-board, won, on elapsed as well as corrected time, and the Dawn less was second. The original winner (the America) was fourth and the Cambria tenth.

Nothing duntid by his failure Mr. Ashbury eturned the following year (1871) with the schooner Livonia, which he had built with the avowed object of winning the Cup. The New York Club committee select if the keel schooners. Sappho and Dauntless, and the controboard schooners, Columbia and Palmer, reserving the right to name any one of these four as a competitor against the Livonia. on morning of each race. Mr. Ashbury vainly protosted against the selection of four vessels, claiming that as he had but one so only one should be put against her for the whole series of races: but the holders were firm and he finally yielded the point. The races sailed were—three between the Columbia and Livonia. and two between the Sappho and Livonia. The Livenia only wen one out of the five, but would probably have won another but for a misunderstanding as to the way of rounding a flag-boat, It was not till 1885 that England again decided to challenge. In the meantime Canada had twice attempted to wrest the coveted trophy from the land of stars and Strines; but in the eyes men did not count for much. Systematic though slow development had been going on in England. The cutter had been found so superior in point of weatherliness that its adoption for racing was a matter of natural selection. A new rule of measurement had been framed by placing a penalty on beam, but there was no restriction upon depth or ballasting. Builders became impressed with the fact that it was the element in size which gives speed in length, and with the use of heavy lead knees, length becan to show a rapid increase, while breadth decreased. Each year produced boats narrower and deeper than their predecessors, with a larger proportion of outside weight, larger sail-plans, and smaller of the Americans contests with Canadian vachtscraft, well adapted for shallow waters. From their beam the American vachts had creat initial stability, which enabled them to carry large sails. They could thus be driven at high speed, and could sail very fast as long the sea was smooth: but in rough weather these qualities did not stand them in good stead. The visit to New York in 1881 of the little Scotch outter Madya-a deep, narrow-keeled craft-and her remarkable series of victories over their sloops. opened the eyes of the Americans to the superiority of the cutter model. The next effort to recover the "Blue Ribbon" of the vachting world was made by Lieutenant Henn, in the following year (1586), with the Galatea, a steel cutter, by the same designer as the same beam, and six inches more draught. His challenge had been forwarded the previous year, but owing to his vessel not being ready the third a triangular course. But, as in the former contests, there was no necessity for sailing the third, the Maylower proving much the faster of the two in both matches sailed."

The Genesta and the Galatea were typical English outters of 5% and 5% beams respectively Their defeat was one of the reasons which England. Considerable opposition had for some time manifested itself to the rule of rating owners and designers declaring that the next step would be the "plank on edge." To the Opusoula of the Odd Volumes Sette, Mr. M. B. Huish has contributed an attractive essay on the subject of Chinese snuff bottles. As an exponent of Oriental art, Mr. Huish has from Singapore for Adelaide. placed the public under great obligations. He approaches his subjects generally from the ethnological point of view, preferring to coneider the relation that works of art bear to the customs and traditions of a people, than to treat them as steeping stones in the history of technical development. Of course, that method of criticism is not entirely satisfactory to either the art student or the collector, but Mr. Huish does well in recalling both from their tendency to forget the motive and remember only the beauties of the objects they prize. No articles' are more esteamed by the Chinese than snull bottles and ink pots. In each alike we find the most exquisite workmanship and the finest materials. There is no variety of porcelain, from the commonest to the rarest, that is not illustrated in Chinese snuff bottles, and as for the materials they range over cameo glass, crystal, jade, amothyst, cornaline, chalcedony, heliotrope, sardonyx, chrysoprase, agate, damascened iron, and cloisonné enamel. Evidently anyone devoting himself to the task of collecting these little objects may be able to obtain illustrations of Chinese art workmanship on an almost exhaustive scale. Yet the undertaking has never found many devotees; for the obvious reason that a multitude of such tiny utensils can never serve any decorative purpose. A few may be placed here and there in a salon, but the great bulk must be treated as one treate coins or Japanese sword furniture, namely, put away in cabinets for the cwoful inspection of patient connoisseurs only. The history of porceain snuff bottles is, of course, the history of Chinese ceramics, and as to the history of snull bottles carvel from precious, minerals or cameo glass, they have apparently no history that can be written. Perhaps in the hands of some Chinese virtuoso there lies an illustrated manuscript describing and depicting the celebrated snuff bottles of some era of art enthusiasm, and perhaps the document may yet come to light, as did the volumes discovered ten years ago by Dr. Bushell in Peking. But there is not much room for a story when we have to deal simply with little receptacles for powdered tobacco, chisolled out of precious stones. It might be a matter of primary interest to the collector to know when jade, or chrysoprase, or agate, or cameo glass was first used On Shanghal.for such a purpose, but neither as illustrating the progress of art industry nor as marking the development of civilization in the Middle On YOHOHAMA.— Kingdom, would the matter justify serious research. A WORLD'S FAIR FOR JAPAN PROPOSED.

While numerous mousures subsequent to the war with China are proposed, Count Okuma urges the opening of a world's fair in Tokyo within three or four years. The Count considers the step necessary for showing the real nature of the country to foreigners, and after enumerating the benefits of a world's fair in Japan says :- "One of the most important measures after the war is the develop- Campbell, Moore & Co. ment of industry and commerce. Unless she wins great victories in the second campaign, all her victories in the first would turn to nothing." A great stimulant for developing the industry and expanding the commerce, so as to enable Japan to win in the second campaign, would be found in a "world's fair." In the Count's opinion, 10,000,000 yen would be enough to defray all the expenses of such a fair, and the sum may be paid out of the indemnity. "The indomnity should not be wasted, but there is nothing to be objected in applying the money to a certain way of commemorating Japan's victory. A world's fair will, besides the lenefits it gives in various other ways, serve as a substantial mements of the war. Ten million yen out of the threehundred million yen of the indemnity is a trifling sum." The Count regrets that there is no sufficiently wide ground in Tokyo for accommodating ten or a hundred thousand men, and the authorities cannot find a suitable site in the capital for the celebration of the triumphal return of troops. He urges that if the world's fair plan is acceptable, the opportunity should be availed of for opening a new and extensive public park. "The Uyene, Asakusa, and Shiba parks are all too narrow for a world's fair. A new lot of ground should be selected and made a park, which can admit into it more than 100,000 people. It can then be ntilized as the site of the fair. If so, the fair scheme would afford an opportunity for os-objection is a near-sighted and shallow one. "94, Commercial Road, Peckham July 12. "Dear Sir.—I am a poor hand at expressing my feelings, but I should like to thank you. lozenges have done wonders in relieving my terrible cough. Since I had the operation of Tracheotomy (the same as the late Emperor of Germany, an I unlike him, thank God, I am still alive) performed at St. Barthholomew's Hospital, no one could possibly have had a more violent cough; it was so had at times that it quite exhausted me. The mucus, which was very copious and hard, has been softened, and I have been able to get rid of it without difficult.—I am, sir, yours truly, J. HILL."

DOCTOR'S TESTIMONY. "Routh Park, Cardiff, South Wales, Sept. 28, 1893.
"I have, indeed, great pleasure in adding my testimony to your excellent preparation of Cough Lozenges, and I have prescribed it now for the last eight years in my hospitals and private practice, and found it of great benefit. I often suffer from Chronic Bronchitis; your Lozenge is the only remedy which gives me immediate esse. Therefore I certainly and most strongly recommend your Lorenges to the public who may suffer from Catarri, Bronchitis, Winter Gough, or any kind of Pulmonary Irritation.-Yours "A.
